"ManpowerGroup has built a reputation as a mission-driven, ethical company for over 63 years and the human way we conduct our business has helped us preserve our unique mission-based culture," said Jeffrey A. Joerres, ManpowerGroup Chairman and CEO. "We have grown into an innovative workforce solutions provider with the largest global footprint in the industry in a way that builds capabilities in people and communities, and is therefore sustainable."

ManpowerGroup was named to the 2011 Dow Jones Sustainability North America Index under the Industrial Goods and Services Category. The DJSI follows a best-in-class approach, including companies across all industries that outperform their peers in numerous sustainability metrics.

Organizations are selected according to methodology that accounts for general as well as industry-specific sustainability trends and evaluates corporations based on a variety of criteria including climate change strategies, energy consumption, human resources development, knowledge management, stakeholder relations and corporate governance.

Earlier this year, ManpowerGroup was recognized as the industry leader by both Fortune magazine and the Ethisphere Institute. The company was ranked first in the industry on Fortune's list of the World's Most Admired Companies, achieving the best score for social responsibility in the staffing industry. ManpowerGroup was the only company in the industry named to Ethisphere's prestigious list of the World's Most Ethical Companies for 2011, honoring the leaders in corporate governance, risk, sustainability, compliance and ethics.
